Cost and Charges

Spreads

The spread is the difference between our Bid and Ask price for a given CFD and is the only cost you incur for the execution of an order. Our spreads are variable (i.e. not fixed spreads) and therefore fluctuate continuously depending on the current market conditions. You may find more details about our spreads in the “Market” section within our website or through the trading platform.

The spread is a one-off cost and is paid when you open or close a position.

Overnight Fee

An overnight fee is either debited or credited to your Account, when you hold a position overnight, depending on the applicable overnight funding rates of each financial instrument. The overnight fee is charged automatically on a daily basis, including weekends, when a position is held pass 05:00 pm EST/EDT. The rates of the overnight fee are variable (i.e. not fixed) and are specified for each instrument on our trading platform and the Website.
